PRIERSBURG, VA., January 14, 1891. At a meeting of the stockholders of th National Bank of Petersburg, held last evening, the following Board of Directors ted: B. B. Vaughan, J. H. Caba iso, R. B. Davis, Charles M. Fry, of New York; E. A. Hartley, W. M. Habliston, T. Beckwith, Charles Cohen Simon Sew ard, R. R. Hill, and A. Wright, The last. ad gentleman is the only new member of the board. The board met this morning and organized by the election of the following officers: President, B. B. Vaughan; Vice President, J. H. Cabaniss. The bank is said to be in fine condition, and doing a large and most satisfactory business.

In the County Court of Chesterfield yes-terday the negro Epps, who assaulted and wounded Preacher Gilliam (colored) with an axe several weeks ago, was tried, con-victed, and sentenced to five years' im-prisonment in the penitentiary. The as-sault was an unprovoked one, and was committed in the public road while Gil-liam was returning home from this city.

IMPORTANT CRIMINAL CARRS. The Hustings Court, which commences its term to morrow, has several important felony cases on the docket—among them that of Paul Young, charged with the murder of Robert Gilliam (colored). His Honor Judge D. M. Bernard has not yet returned from Florida, and it is understood that Judge Ingram, of the Corporation Court of Manchester, will preside for him until his return. The Mayor concludes his letter as follows:

"The youth of Virginia should be educated to revere and love the name and fame of Robert E. Lee, and to associate that name with that other filtustrious name, Washington, whose birthiday is and has been a legal holiday for so many years in Virginia, the birthplace of these two cunicent men. I regard this as a pleasing way to impress the minds and hearts of the youth of our State with veneration for these partic Virginians to make make these days public-school holidays."

DEATH OF MES. TURNER.

Mrs. Jane E. Turner, relict of Captain James M. Turner, died to-day at her restdence on Market street.

Information has been received of the critical illness of Mr. J. T. Neblett, a prominent citizen of Lunenburg county, who is prostrated with typhoid-fever.

The Nottoway Grays and the Farmville Grays will not be able to take part in the celebration of General Lee's birthday here.

MORE WAGES WANTED. The farmers in some of the counties are finding difficulty in making their labor-contracts for the year. It is said that a good many negroes have gone away, and higher prices are being asked by those who

A Republican of this city says that he heard some days ago that Congressman Lanceton was making efforts to have some of the postmasters in the district turned out and new ones appointed. He is inclined to believe that the published statement from Washington in this respect true, but thinks Langston's efforts may be directed to the small country post-offices, and without effect.

THE IDENTITY OF A CALF.

An Amusing Controversy Between Citi zens of Gordonsville-Shooting, &c. [Correspondence of the Richmond Dispatch.]

GORDONSVILLE, VA., January 13, 1891.
This town has been shaken from centre o circumference over the identity of a alf. Two citizens of the town put their calves at weaning time in the same pas-ture When they went for the calves both caives when they went for the caives both claimed one calf, and they were honest in their belief. Both men employed able counsel. Mr. Stutz had General James G. Field, Mr. Leake secured Mr. Lindsay They had about the same number of witnesses on each side (ten or twelve) to prove the calf belonged to each one. Of course a good deal of the testi-mony did not count for much, as many figured in Mr. Winkle's capacity—told too much. Some very amusing evidence was HE WAS " PERLITE."

One negro testified the calf in controversy was by his "steer." That created such a laugh he then said: "I tried to be perlite as dar was ladies present, but I shant say steer no more: I's gwine say bull now." Both parties agreed to leave the case to two magistrates to decide. They decided, according to the evidence, it was Mr. Stutz's calf. Mr. Leake has ten days to say whether he will take it to a higher to say whether he will take it to a higher court or not.

SHOOTING.

The gun club is a thing of the past. No more will be heard the sharp report until the club is reorganized. Its members have done their last shooting to decide who would have the surplus money and traps. SEATING.

SKATING.

The past week the young people of the town and the surrounding country have been collecting on Baker's large pondenjoying the skating. Mr. Hufly, of Washington, and Mr. Fernard Grymes, of this town, were especially noticeable for their rapid movements and fancy strokes. The small boy was quite plentiful on the ice with his backward skating, deliberate aim, and many excuses as he would upset the equilibrium of a spoony couple lagging behind. There was enjoyment for all, as the ladies who did not skate were sent skimming over the ice in small rocking-chairs by big, stalwart skaters. Last night's thunder-storm has melted the ice, so no more skating until grim winter sends the thermometer in another direction.

THE ITALIAN AND HIS BEAR.

THE ITALIAN AND HIS BEAR. Not very far from here, whilst a bear was performing on a railroad track, at the instigation of his master for the amusement of some school-shildren, the train came along. The bear soied the train about the time his master did. The man coaxed, pulled, and showed as the engineer whistled for them to get off the track, but that bear remained a fixture. He showed his teeth and growled, ready to make a believerent attack on the oncoming train. The ligerent attack on the oncoming train. The Italian, foreseeing the result, grabbed the bear in his arms and both rolled down the embankment together. After the train passed they both returned to the track, and travelled on together as amicably as

New Strone. January 12, 1891.

Monday was Buckingham County-Court day, and as usual there was a large attendance from this and adjoining counties.

The court was occupied in the trial of John Prior for shooting and killing another nerro boy on the 29th of November last at Saratoga farm, in the lower end of the county, naised Nelson Peaks, who died in a couple of hours after being shot. Prior is seventeen years old, but is not larger than a boy ten or twelve. He is a dwarf swidently, and bears a bad character. The jury was out but a short while and rendered a verdict of guilty and fixed his term of confinement in the penitentiary at eight years.

A BOLD BUEGLAR. [Correspondence of the Richmond Dispatch.]

On the 8th day of this month Lewis alias Dink Austin, living near Arcanum postoffice, upon returning from a burial hastened forward and found that his house had been broken open and he saw the feet of some one under the door, who was standing behind it. He called to know who it was and what the intruder was doing in his house, and he found it to be Moses Holtman, a railread-hand, who has been off out of the county for some time. In a very short while Austin had some six or seven of his neighbors there, and upon examination it was found that he (Holtman) had ranasched his cheets, trunk, and boxes, and the thief had the impudence to ask to be permitted to stay all night. It then being about sandown this was granted, but whilst the fire was being kindled he attempted, to run, when Austin gathered up his double-barrel shotgan, which was loaded with No. 6 bird-shot, and let bim have the contents sfer first calling to him twice to stop. When the constable found him next day he had only gotten a few miles away and was found to be filled with shot from his hips down. A BOLD BURGLAR.

Dink Austin and his brother George shot and robbed him of every cent he had. This young fellow Holman was raised in the county and has been in several scrapes heretofore and his word is not worth much. But, as the old darky remarked, "some-thing oughter be done to stop these nig-gers from flinging gun-shot about so per-miscus."

stainless personal character; by his unflagging and unsolfish devotion to the interests of the South; by his unsurpassed ability as an exponent and champion of her rights and principles, as well as by his distinguished public services in peace and war, and his high official station was universally regarded, both at home and abroad, as preeminently the representative of a great era, a great cause, and a great people.

HIS VINDICATION.

The era is closed, the cause is lost, but the people remain and revere the memory, and mourn him dead, whom living, they delighted to honor. It is for them that I write this memoir and vindication of his political action. In vindicating him I also vindicate them; for he spent his long life in their service, and was rewarded with their love and confidence from his cradle to his grave. In the doing of the sacred task I shall endeavor to be guided by the spirit that inspired him during his whole life: a spirit of unyielding devotion to truth and duty, of uncompromising antagonism against all assailants of justice, without regard to their prejudices or their numbers, but mindful of the fact that every opponent, even to the death, is not necessarily an enemy, and that sincerity of belief is entitled to respect even when found arrayed against us, I shall endeavor to do exact and equal justice to the antagonists of the South, as well as to her leaders: 'naught to extenuate nor set down aught in malice.' If I fail, it will be because my love for the southern people and their Lost Cause and leader may unconsciously influence my judgment of the men and beliefs that were arrayed in deadly conflict during the war between the States." The era is closed, the cause is lost, but conflict during the war between the

The early chapters of Mrs. Davis's book are devoted to the early life of her husband and his ancestors, who came from Wales and located at Philadelphia. There were three brothers, and the youngest of these, Evans Davis, removed to Georgia, then a colouy of Great Britsin. He married a widow named Emory and had one son, Samuel Davis, the father of Jefferson Davis. HIS PATHER AND MOTHER.

Mrs. Davis quotes Jefferson Davis as having described his father and mother in the following language:
"During his service in South Carolina my father met my mother, and after the war they were married. Her maiden name was Jane Cook. She was of Scotch-Irish descent, and was noted for her beauty and sprightliness of mind. She had a graceful, poetic mind, which, with much of her personal beauty, she retained to extreme old age. My father also was unusually handsome, and the accomplished horseman his early life among the 'mounted man' of Georgis naturally made him. He was a man of wonderful physical activity."

"The last time I saw my father he was sixty-four years of age. He was about to mount a tail and restless horse, so that it was difficult for him to put his foot in the stirrup. Suddenly he valited from the ground into the saddle without any assistance. He was usually grave and of stoical character, and of such sound indement that his opinions were a law to his children, and quoted by them long after he had gone to his final rest, and when they were growing old."

In the other chapters of the book Mrs. Davis enters at length into the private and public life of the family and answers the attacks that have been made upon her husband in his several capacities. The social life of the Confederacy is also described with great minuteness, and as Mrs. Davis
